NISO welcomes all publishers, for-profit, and larger non-profit organizations that serve the global library community and that have an active interest in collaborating on information standards.

ABOUT US

The National Information Standards Organization (NISO), a non-profit association accredited by the American National Standards Institute (ANSI), identifies, develops, maintains, and publishes technical standards to manage information in today’s continually changing digital environment. NISO standards, recommended practices, technical reports, and white papers apply to both traditional and new technologies and to information across its whole life cycle, from creation through documentation, use, repurposing, storage, and preservation.

ENGAGEMENT

NISO’s work involves the contributions of dedicated volunteers, who assist the community through their engagement. Your work with NISO will allow you to boost your CV, network, and contribute to the field in several ways.

Each member has the opportunity to:

• Participate in NISO standards committees
• Serve on a U.S. Technical Advisory Group to ISO, the International Organization for Standardization — Technical Committee 46
• Attend NISO business meetings and vote to influence the direction of NISO
• Keep up to date using our Member e-newsletter

CREATE THE FUTURE OF STANDARDS

NISO fosters the development and maintenance of standards that facilitate the creation, persistent management, and effective interchange of information so that it can be trusted for use in research and learning. The organization brings together U.S. and international libraries, publishers, information aggregators, and other organizations that support learning, research, and scholarships. NISO engages with intersecting communities of interest and works across the entire lifecycle of an international standard.

Voting members who are based in the United States can participate as members of the U.S. Technical Advisory Group to ISO Technical Committee 46 on Information and Documentation, voting and commenting upon draft international standards.

Upon joining, your organization will be listed as a Voting Member on the NISO website as well as on each standard. Working with other dedicated organizations to develop solutions through standards is a lasting benefit of NISO membership!
