Where to Get the Draft for Comment
Please use the ZedAI forum and/or the issue tracker to provide feedback. A list of items that reviewers are asked to focus on is available from the ZedAI User Portal.

Authoring & Interchange Framework (ZedAI)
Draft for Comment
http://www.daisy.org/z3986/2011/

User Portal
http://www.daisy.org/zw/ZedAI_UserDocumentation

ZedAI Forum
http://www.daisy.org/forums/zedai

Issue Tracker
http://code.google.com/p/zednext/issues/list?can=2&q=spec-ai

DAISY Revision Underway
Part A: Authoring & Interchange Framework
NOW AVAILABLE for Public Review

The NISO Specifications for the Digital Talking Book standard—known informally as the DAISY standard (ANSI/NISO Z39.86)—is being revised to improve and extend the user experience, to modularize the standard for ease of use, to provide support for a wider range of materials, and allow for innovation. The revision includes two parts:

✓ Part A: Authoring and Interchange Framework (colloquially referred to as ZedAI)

✓ Part B: Distribution (colloquially referred to as ZedDisti)

The ZedAI Framework is a specification that defines the next generation of DAISY XML. The specification is intended to be submitted to NISO for formal standardization in the fourth quarter of 2010, with final approval expected in the spring of 2011.

The first major ZedAI public draft for review by the DAISY community is now available at the Z39.86-2011 Specification Document Working Area on the DAISY Consortium website. The review phase will last until the end of the third quarter of 2010. Updated working drafts will be made available during the review phase, as a result of community input.